

Hoof Temperature Sensor

Abstract

A hoof temperature sensor comprises temperature sensitive strips or modules affixed to a hoof that provide a visual indication of the hoof temperature. The temperature sensitive modules may be configured for indicating temperature according to the color of the module or a portion of it, by numeric values printed on the strip, or combinations of color and numeric values. The visual indication of temperature may be either reversible, irreversible, or a combination of both.